

Please replace current "Abstract" with the following heading and paragraph

Abstract

Extending the circuitry of a wireless telephonic device into an extension phone, enabling the generation of outgoing calls from the extension over the wireless device communication network. The linkage via a connection port will results in a circuit extensions that make the extension phone part of the wireless device.